My Goodness! I got to thinking "What if I were given one day or 1 hour to just go out and enjoy life. What would I do? ... I pondered ... and pondered some more. "What if I had to travel to a distant place, which I had never been to before?" "What if my first destination was South America? I then thought about the traffic in Dubai, having just come from there. Having been a passenger in a 30-something seater, I was just amazed at the number of cars, buses, private cars and scooters, that were all vying for space. As the traffic jams had slowed down, I was eager to check out what was going on. Everyone was rushing off to work early, and most of us were exhausted. Yet, we managed to be energised, or so we thought, as we took the MRT to our respective workplaces. And then, I thought of having to travel to the South Pole. Isn't it cold? Cold?! You're kidding me, this is the equator. I was just amazed that life could exist in such extreme cold. I had to use a sweater, an extra sweater, my ski jacket, and a jacket that was almost falling apart. So, I decided to spend all of my time on a journey of adventures. The important thing was that I wouldn't be rushing around. It is amazing how much time you can spend just sitting and watching the world go by. I would love to spend the rest of my days watching the sun slowly set behind the volcano, on the beach, looking at the beautiful beauty of the sea. And, as you think about the big picture of your life, what would you like to do? Simple things to start with, think simple life. Some simple life would be enjoying every single day, the minute, and going from there. Your achievement is to travel to the South Pole, but your goal is to enjoy every day, the minute, and no more DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — In April, when self-service merchants at the Dubai airport added their name and details to a long list of "no-show" traders, they discovered the city's government was planning an ambitious advertising campaign. Dubai's Middle East Airlines was to start using social networks and start-ups to b7e8fdf5c8
